

A framed oil painting of a landscape. In the foreground, a large, textured tree trunk stands on a patch of ground covered with small, colorful flowers in shades of yellow, purple, and blue. A path or streambed leads from the right side of the foreground into the distance. The background features more trees, some bare and some with green foliage, under a pale, hazy sky. The entire painting is enclosed in a simple, light-colored wooden frame.